"As a partner, we are pleased to participate in Reimagine as a silver sponsor," said Samir Bhatia CEO of Brightleaf, adding, "complete automation of extraction of meta-data from your contracts and migration of this data into the CLM is critical to increase customer satisfaction while maximizing revenues and profitability for the company."

Brightleaf's proprietary software helps analyze and extract attributes, provisions, clauses, and even obligations from any type of contractual documents. Using customized configurations tailored to each client's requirements, the software identifies and extracts all the terms and legal provisions from executed contracts and any associated companion documents.

Samir added, "A CLM software cannot be put into its best use unless all the required current and legacy data is uploaded on it for efficient contract management and analytics. The partnership will help in successful implementation and roll out of the solution by providing integrated technology deployment and data migration services to our clients, making the process smooth and successful."
